CABINET TO ACT AS PALL BEARERS

Residents Of Cleveland Met At The Depot To Pay Their Last Respects To The Honored Statesman.

[SPECIAL BY SCRIPPS-M'RAE.]
Cleveland, Ohio, July 2.—The train bearing the body of John Hay reached Glenville at six-forty-five this morning. The body was in a casket in a special car. Another car carried Mrs. Hay, Clarence Hay and Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Mather. The party immediately drove to the Mather summer home at Glenville. The body lies in the state Chamber of Commerce building for two days. The public will not be permitted to view the remains. Only relatives and a few intimate friends will attend the funeral services. The President's party arrives at nine Wednesday to attend the funeral. All members of the cabinet, together with Elihu Root, Lyman Clegg, Philander Knox, John D. Long and Paul Morton have been requested to act as pallbearers.

At noon the body was brought from Glenville and escorted to the Chamber of Commerce building by police, cavalry and a committee of citizens. Newbury, N. H., July 3.—Through a drenching rain, over a narrow winding mountain road which was a channel of mud, and under skies of lead the little funeral party accompanying the body of John Hay late secretary of state, began its sad journey Sunday from "The Fells" to Newbury, N. H., to take the train thence to Cleveland, O., the place of burial. The distance to the station was two and a half miles, and the trip consumed an hour.

The funeral party consisted of Mrs. Hay, the widow; Clarence Hay, Dr. Charles L. Scudder of Boston, who attended Secretary Hay during his last illness; Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Mather of Cleveland, the latter a sister of Mrs. Hay; and S. A. Raymond, also a relative of Mrs. Hay.

Residents of Hamlet Turn Out.

Not a person was met along the lonely mountain road, and the window shades of the few scattered farmhouses along the route were drawn. Nearly all the residents of the little hamlet were assembled at the station.

CIGARETTE PAPERS STREWN ON STREETS

Smokers in Edgerton Evidence Their Numbers by Amount of Discarded Papers on Walks.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]

Edgerton, July 1.—The early pedestrians this morning could not but notice the profuse supply of cigarette papers scattered over the main streets. It was noticeable but many did not comprehend its significance. The quantity of them gave evidence of the mass of people desiring to conform with the new law which went into force today prohibiting the sale, use or possession of the "coffin nail."

VERY RICH BANK IS IN DIFFICULTIES

The First National of Topeka, Kansas, is Closed by Order of the Bank Examiner.

[SPECIAL BY SCRIPPS-M'RAE.]

Topeka, Kas., July 3.—The First National bank, the largest financial institution in the city, failed to open its doors this morning. The bank examiner asked for the closing. It is the result of a complication of the affairs of C. H. Devlin, chief stockholder and reputed to be the wealthiest man in Kansas. His affairs were placed in the hands of a million-dollar corporation chartered Saturday in Missouri. The bank's liabilities and assets May first were $2,551,304. A large number of depositors were lined up in front of the bank this morning.

Appoint Receiver.

Washington, July 3.—The comptroller of the currency has appointed National Bank Examiner Bradley as temporary receiver of the First National bank of Topeka.

Following the announcement of the failure of the First National bank, a run was started on the Central National, in which Devlin is a stockholder. At other banks many deposits were withdrawn. Devlin turned over to the First National securities and insurance policies worth a million and a half dollars.

Five hundred hands were thrown out of employment today, when the Evansville, Ind., glass works shut down for the season.

JAPAN WOULD RETURN MONEY TO SUBJECTS

Government Banker Says That Would Be Policy of Nation in Event of Peace.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]

London, July 2.—M. Kogoro Takahashi, governor of the bank of Japan and financial agent for the Japanese government left here today for his native land, after an extended visit through Europe and the United States. Mr. Takahashi will appear before the imperial cabinet immediately upon his arrival in Japan and confer with the officials upon the advisability of making further large loans in foreign markets in the event that peace seems assured. It is understood that he has perfected arrangements for such loans should they be considered necessary. "Japan will need a considerable amount of money after the war," said Mr. Takahashi in speaking of the matter to give new impetus to her industries. While business in the country is in no way injured, yet if the money advanced by the Japanese people in the first war loan of $250,000,000 is returned to them on the termination of the war, it will give a tremendous new life to Japanese industries.

Oswego, N. Y., July 3.—The great condensed milk factory of Henri Nestle of Switzerland at Fulton which was put into the hands of packers and cleaners today as a result of the determination of the company to leave the American field, will cause great loss to the farmers in this section by its decision. About $1,000 a day has been spent out for milk and in addition to the loss sustained by the farmers, over two hundred employees will be out of work. The Nestle people are retiring from America because of an agreement with the Borden Condensed Milk Company, which has also agreed to abandon the European field. While the Nestle people claim to be satisfied with their sales in America, it is thought that the main object of their establishing their large plant in America was to drive out American competition from France and Switzerland, which they succeeded in doing.

The convention today was opened by Governor Edward C. Stokes of New Jersey, who made the address of welcome. Governor Stokes' address was responded to by Albert G. Lane, former president of the National Educational Association. An address was also made by President William H. Maxwell, superintendent of schools in New York. Among others who will address the convention during its sessions are W. T. Harris, United States commissioner of education; President Alderman, of the University of Virginia; Francis E. The meet will be the most notable held in this country. Races have been provided for all classes of cars and many of the contests carry a championship title. The A. A. A. plans for the future comprise the building up of a strong national body that will extend itself from coast to coast and contain in its membership all the clubs of the country organized into state associations which will work for uniform and just legislation, agitate roads improvement and control racing in an impartial manner that will satisfy both patrois and participants in the sport.

MUTINEERS OFFERING TO GIVE UP

Crews Of The Different Vessels Have Agreed To Surrender Under Certain Conditions, To The Authorities.

[SPECIAL BY SCRIPPS-M'RAE.]

Odessa, July 3.—The city continues quiet under a strong guard of troops. Work was resumed in some quarters this morning.

Make Threats

Kustenki, Roumania, July 3.—Local authorities have notified the mutineers aboard the battleship Potemkin force will be employed against them if they attempt any disorder. The mutineers said they had no intention of threatening the town. The Roumanian government has several regiments here to preserve order while the vessel remains in port.

Leaves for Odessa

St. Petersburg, July 3.—Count Ignatoff left for Odessa with power to deal with the situation there and treat with the mutineers.

Another Revolution

Berlin, July 3.—The Frankfurter Zeitung says an open revolution has broken out in Nikolai, Batum, and all vessels bounded by the Black sea ports are anchored in the Bosporus.

Another Mutiny

St. Petersburg, July 3.—The crew of the cruiser Minine at Kronstadt mutined, refusing to obey the orders to put to sea. The vessel has been taken outside the port.

The mutinous battleship Kuznetki, while the rest of the ships of the squadron were understood to be cruising below the horizon.

Rebels Have Two Ships.

Odessa, July 3.—Two battleships of the Black sea fleet are in the hands of the mutineers—the Kuznetki and the Georgi Pobedonosetz.

The former, still defiant, has left port.

The crew of the latter is willing to surrender if the men are guaranteed full pardon from the czar. This the Odessa officials refuse to give and the mutineers still hold the ship.

All accounts now agree that the mutineers are remorseful or are lacking courage.

A boat containing a boatswain, who acted as captain of the mutineers, and several seamen came ashore at the breakwater where, according to an official statement, they declared they wished to ask the czar's forgiveness.

They offered to send forty hostages ashore. They said the ship had not been damaged.

Crew Sticks to Ship.

When the boat's crew landed at the breakwater a force of troops was sent to capture them. The chief of the port gendarmerie and an officer of the harbor authorities spoke to them. The boatswain declared that he and his friends wanted to surrender and also to give up four of the ringleaders. They declared they had smashed the breechlocks to the vessel's guns.

Shortly afterwards the governor general of police and 3,000 troops arrived. Again there

INCUBATORS IN USE AT PORTLAND EXPO.

Tiny Babies Kept Alive by the Wonderful Inventions of Modern Times.

CIGARETTE LAW VERY STRINGENT

Requirements Are Drastic and Must Be Lived Up to by the Smokers.

Portland, Oregon.—Think of a family of incubator children, each baby in its own castle and each receiving royal care. They are such delicate, frail, tiny little cherubs that they are not yet ready to begin their struggles for existence. Then think of the cares and attention that must be given them of change of linen and special swaddling clothes, of the feeding and nursing and medical attendance required, and you will have an idea of the infant incubators that form one of the most interesting and thoroughly scientific features at the Lewis and Clark Centennial exposition. Half a dozen skilled nurses, who have been trained especially for the incubator institution in Berlin and Paris, devote their time and energy and care to these babies, while Dr. M. A. Conney and Dr. Schenckel of Berlin superintendent and direct the work.

To the spectators, the incubator babies appear to lead an undisturbed life behind the glass doors of their castles, peacefully sleeping upon the whitest of pillows, their tiny hands peeping out of doli sleeves, their eyes looking only occasionally into an unknown world. The average weight of each is about 2½ pounds; but even though they are so small, they are not so quiet as they look, and if they reach the incubator in time and are alive forty-eight hours after arrival Dr. Conney declares that they will have a good chance to live and thrive. These babies are premature, and come usually to the incubators in a comatose condition. By drastic measures vitality is brought back.

As soon as received, the frail infant is given a bath in water and mustard. Then two drops of brandy are placed in its mouth, which acts as a stimulant. Its body is rubbed with specially prepared lotion, and into the incubator it goes. For four days it is kept at a temperature of from 90 to 105 degrees, being removed regularly day and night every two hours to be fed 15 grams of nourishment. Its food consists of milk supplied by healthy wet nurses. The child being too weak to have a desire for food, the nasal spoon is used, and the milk is drawn and placed in a tall glass, which is immersed in a larger glass containing warm water. This keeps the milk at the proper temperature. The nasal spoon and the method of nasal feeding are new to America—a revelation, in fact. The infant is out of danger when it has the strength to take at least 30 grams or one ounce of nourishment at a single feeding. Every infant is weighed before and after each feeding, to ascertain the amount of nourishment taken, and a complete record is kept of this, as of all other details of the incubator process.

The air of the incubators is kept at a uniform temperature by means of an automatic contrivance, and fresh air is introduced through a large pipe. This air is purified by passing through an antiseptic fluid and then cotton, and it is warmed before it is permitted to pass into the infant's apartment. The most important consideration for a child prematurely born is temperature. Consequently, the temperature of the incubator is kept uniform, and the automatic contrivance used for this is so perfectly regulated that the temperature is always correct. Moreover, a thermometer at the front of the incubator is a constant guide as to the thermal condition.

Statistics show that of premature or weakly born infants, under ordinary conditions, only 15 per cent live; by means of the incubators 85 per cent are saved. These artificial mothers, the incubators, are wonderful bits of mechanism, invented by Drs. M. A. Conney and S. Schenckel, who have charge of the institution at the Portland fair. The incubator house is a center of interest. Nearly everybody goes to see the babies in the incubators, and to many women in particular the sight is so fascinating that they return time and time again.

DO NOT BORROW YOUR NEIGHBOR'S PAPER

Awful Things Happen to Those Who Borrow Papers Rather Than Buy Them.

An exchange prints the following little skit on borrowing your neighbor's paper. While this is not prevalent in Janesville still the following might happen, so beware:

A man who was too economical to subscribe for his home paper, sent his little boy to borrow the copy taken by his neighbor. In his haste the boy ran over a $1 stand of bees and in ten minutes looked like a warty summer squash. His cries reached his father, who ran to his assistance, and failing to notice a barbed wire fence, ran into it, breaking it down, cutting a handful of flesh from his anatomy and ruined a $5 pair of pants. The old cow took advantage of the gap in the fence and got into the cornfield and killed herself eating green corn. Hearing the racket, the wife ran, upset a four-gallon churn of rich cream into a basket of kittens, drowning the whole flock. In her hurry she dropped a $25 set of false teeth. The baby, left alone, crawled through the spilled cream and into the parlor, ruining a $20 carpet. During the excitement the oldest daughter ran away with the hired man, the dog broke up eleven setting hens, and the calves got out and chewed the tails off four fine shirts.

21 FINE JERSEYS FOUND INFECTED

TUBERCULOSIS ON N. N. PALMER AND SON FARM,

MANY YOUNG CHICKS DYING

Potato Bug Pest Being Successfully Combated—Weekly Report of Crops.

Upon the request of N. N. Palmer and son, owners of the noted Evergreen herd of Jerseys, to have the tuberculin test applied to their cattle, Assistant State Veterinarian George Little of this city visited their farm in the town of Spring Valley Saturday and examined their herds. From the entire number twenty-one responded to the test and were ordered killed. The finding of the dread disease in this lot of cattle was a great surprise to the owners, the majority of farmers, stock-raisers and buyers in this part of the country. The average price paid by the state for the condemned animals was thirty dollars, while many of them the owners refused to sell for a hundred.

Dealers Have No Regrets

Cigar and tobacco dealers in this city have evinced a general disposition to obey the law. Many of them regard the passing of the cigarette as a distinct advantage. For with their sale prohibited there will be a corresponding increase in the sale of cigars. There is more profit in cigars.

What the Law Says

The so-called cigarette law follows:

"Any person who shall, by himself, his servant or agent, or as the servant or agent of any other person, directly or indirectly, or upon any pretense, by any device, manufacture, sell, offer for sale, give away or otherwise dispose of or bring into this state for the purpose of selling, offering for sale, giving away or otherwise disposing of any cigarettes, cigarette paper or cigarette wrappers, or any substitute therefor, or any paper made or prepared for the purpose of making cigarettes or any substitute therefor, or for the purpose of being filled with tobacco for smoking, or who shall own, keep or be in any way concerned, employed in owning or keeping any such cigarettes, cigarette paper, cigarette wrappers or substitute therefor; or who shall authorize or permit the same to be done with the intent to violate any provision of this section, shall be guilty of a misdemeanor, and upon conviction thereof shall be punished, for the first offense, by a fine of not less than $5 nor more than $50, or by imprisonment in the county jail not exceeding thirty days, and for the second and each subsequent offense by a fine of not less than $100 nor more than $500, or by imprisonment in the county jail not less than thirty days nor more than six months; that one-half of the fine recovered shall go to the complaining witness; provided, that the provision thereof shall not apply to the sales of jobbers or manufacturers doing an interstate business with customers outside the state."

EAGLES TRIUMPHANT OVER RED STOCKINGS

With Mended Wings They Swoop Down on Crimson Legged Team and Win Victory.

Yesterday marked the passing of the cigarette and cigarette paper in Wisconsin. At least that is the purpose of the law which goes into effect today. No one, whether dealer or man in the street, may lawfully dispose of cigarettes or cigarette paper. Even the gift of a cigarette by one friend to another constitutes a misdemeanor. The law does not make it an offense to make a cigarette, but it is unlawful to buy, sell, or borrow them or to give them away. The purpose of the law was to make it impossible, or at least difficult, to get either cigarettes or cigarette paper.

Dealers Have No Regrets

Cigar and tobacco dealers in this city have evinced a general disposition to obey the law. Many of them regard the passing of the cigarette as a distinct advantage. For with their sale prohibited there will be a corresponding increase in the sale of cigars. There is more profit in cigars.

What the Law Says

The so-called cigarette law follows:

"Any person who shall, by himself, his servant or agent, or as the servant or agent of any other person, directly or indirectly, or upon any pretense, by any device, manufacture, sell, offer for sale, give away or otherwise dispose of or bring into this state for the purpose of selling, offering for sale, giving away or otherwise disposing of any cigarettes, cigarette paper or cigarette wrappers, or any substitute therefor, or who shall authorize or permit the same to be done with the intent to violate any provision of this section, shall be guilty of a misdemeanor, and upon conviction thereof shall be punished, for the first offense, by a fine of not less than $5 nor more than $50, or by imprisonment in the county jail not exceeding thirty days, and for the second and each subsequent offense by a fine of not less than $100 nor more than $500, or by imprisonment in the county jail not less than thirty days nor more than six months; that one-half of the fine recovered shall go to the complaining witness; provided, that the provision thereof shall not apply to the sales of jobbers or manufacturers doing an interstate business with customers outside the state."

Tested Animals Wanted

While the cattle-raisers lose money upon having their herds examined, in that they receive from the state much less than they would have if they sold the animals the value of the test of the herd is brought up considerably by the fact that they have successfully passed the tuberculin test. Buyers of stock are looking only for cattle not infected with the disease and the two representatives of the Japanese government who have been doing a goodly amount of purchasing among the better bred animals in the country are picking only from the herds which are by test proven to be not suffering with tuberculinosis. The cattle they are buying are sent to the experiment station in the Flowering Kingdom.

Much Poultry Dying

Reports come from throughout the farming districts that the young chickens are dying in large numbers. In many cases the birds are suffering from insects while in others there is no perceptible cause. The early hatchlings of chicks were very successful and there will be an immense amount of poultry on the market in season this year but the later hatchings are nearly all being destroyed by either the unknown cause or insects.

This prospective oversupply of fowl for marketing may be reduced to normal in both quality and quantity. The harvesting of rye has commenced on the sandy soils, while oats and barley have grown so rank that they are lodging, which will make it difficult harvesting if the wet weather continues. Corn, though a month ago it seemed backward and many growers were looking forward to a poor crop, has reached the usual stage for this time of the year and is promising excellently. Its growth during the past two or three weeks has been very rapid and satisfactory.

Potato Bugs Numerous

Thicker than they have been at any time for the past ten years are the potato bugs this season. While a number of years ago this amount of insects would have been considered disastrous by the farmers it does not now threaten to destroy to such an extent that the harvest will be small, for improved methods of combating this pest have been discovered and are being used generally. Formerly paris green was dissolved in water and sprinkled on the plants but now the same poison is shaken dry form from a gauze sack and the dew of the nights is left to dampen it. There are several other ways of annihilating the insects that are being used. The prospect now is for an average crop of the tubers.

...Forty Years Ago...

Janesville Daily Gazette, Monday, July 3, 1865.—The directors of the Milwaukee & St. Paul railroad, at a meeting in Milwaukee on Friday, elected Alex. Mitchell as president and S. S. Merrill as manager.

The balloon ascensions tomorrow evening will probably take place from the corner of Main and Milwaukee streets. The time named for them is nine o'clock.

The young men of this city propose to have a horseback ride tomorrow evening and desire the "boys" to turn out with their steeds and assemble at the corner of Main and Milwaukee streets at 6 o'clock sharp. Infantry is "played out."

Let everyone who can get a horse be on hand.

A Whiskey Exhibition.—Yesterday about five o'clock, a fight occurred between two men who live near Beloit. They were brothers-in-law, and came to this city with their wives, all of whom appeared as if they had imbibed too much whiskey, which we regret to say may be found inious a wrong.

great abundance in this city on Sundays. After the fight, one of the men got into the wagon, which already contained the two women and drove at full speed down Jackson street to the Methodist church, where he was thrown out upon his head, from the effects of which he remained insensible for some time. The yelling of the drunken driver, the screaming of the women, and the rattling of the wagon called out a large number of citizens, some of whom concluded that the jail was the proper place for the parties, to which place they were accordingly taken.

Some persons may not think it is very good taste to publish such Sabbath day exhibitions, but if the authorities will not put a stop to the liquor selling on Sundays, so that the religious people can go to and from their places of worship without being molested by drunken men, who have procured their whiskey at licensed saloons, it is time, we think, that such scenes as occurred yesterday, should be generally known.

Perhaps the people may become disgusted after a while and take measures to right so great and grievous.

An Animal Story For Little Folks.

Jack and the Honey

"What a fearful annoyance are these flies!" exclaimed Jack the dog, one warm spring day as half a dozen of the little winged insects buzzed about his head.

Then he snapped at one of them—a bluebottle fly—and Mr. Fly tumbled to the ground with one of his wings broken.

"Don't crush me," cried the fly as Jack lifted his paw to stop on the bluebottle—"please don't crush me!"

"Why should I have pity on you?" asked the dog.

"Because I have something to tell you that is of interest to you," answered the fly.

"Well, what is it?" asked Jack, puzzled to hear what the bluebottle had to say.

"Do you like honey?" asked the fly.

"Yes," answered Jack.

"Then, if you will spare me, I will tell you where you can go and get all you want without trouble," declared the little fly.

"Where?" asked the dog.

The bluebottle fly raised himself on his hind legs and pointed to a live

INTERNAL TRADE.

Statistics of important internal trade movements, as received by the Department of Commerce and Labor through its Bureau of Statistics, indicates that the grain receipts at leading primary markets were not so heavy during the month of May as they were for a like month in the preceding year, nor was the total inbound movement of all cereals at these markets for the first five months of the current year so heavy as that of a corresponding period in 1904, notwithstanding the present year's heavy increase in the movement of corn. On the other hand, live-stock receipts both for the month and for the year, to and including May 31, show an appreciable increase over similar arrivals in 1904.

The total grain receipts at twelve important interior primary markets during May amounted to 27,016,565 bushels and present a decided decrease, if compared with the preceding month's movement or with that of a similar month in 1904. For the first five months of the current year grain arrivals at these markets aggregated 222,063,827 bushels, an amount approximately 64 million bushels less than that representing a corresponding movement in 1904. Of the different cereals received, wheat amounted to 55,004,352 bushels; corn, 87,022,399 bushels; oats, 55,942,368 bushels; barley, 21,520,747 bushels, and rye, 2,573,461 bushels. Corresponding inbound movements during a similar period in 1904 were 63,098, 22,928,458 bushels of barley, and 3,533 bushels off wheat, 78,019,351 bushels of corn, 60,742,604 bushels of oats, 733,644 bushels of rye. As compared with the 1904 grain arrivals, losses were sustained at the markets of Cincinnati, Detroit, Duluth, Kansas City, Louisville, Milwaukee, Minneapolis, Peoria, and St. Louis; while gains were made at Chicago, Omaha, and Toledo.

Receipts of wheat at the four spring wheat markets of Milwaukee, Minneapolis, Chicago, and Duluth during the present crop year to and including May 31, amounted to 134,577,081 bushels, as against a corresponding movement in 1904 of 137,273,589 bushels, and in 1902-3 of 155,404,414 bushels. Of the current season's movements 80,725,390 bushels were received at Minneapolis, 6,808,156 bushels at Milwaukee, 22,708,921 bushels at Duluth, and 24,334,614 bushels at Chicago. As compared with the movement for 1904 losses were sustained at Milwaukee and Duluth, although slight gains were made at both Minneapolis and Chicago.

At the four winter-wheat markets of Toledo, St. Louis, Detroit, and Kansas City receipts of wheat from July 1, 1904, to May 31, 1905, aggregated 55,891,403 bushels, in contrast with 71,602,155 bushels received during a similar period in 1903-4, and 73,051,147 bushels in 1902-3. Of the current season's arrivals 2,785,636 bushels were received at Toledo, 19,823,600 bushels at St. Louis, 2,229,665 bushels at Detroit, and 31,052,502 bushels at Kansas City. As compared with the 1904 figures losses were sustained at all four of the markets specified, while comparison with the movements for 1903 indicate a loss for Toledo and Detroit, but a gain for St. Louis and Kansas City. Total receipts of wheat during the crop year to and including May 31, aggregated 190,468,484 bushels, as compared with a like movement in 1903-4 of 208,575,744 bushels, and in 1902-3 of 228,519,561 bushels.

During the month of May the eastbound trunk line movement of grain from Chicago and Chicago points amounted to 5,786,000 bushels, as compared with a corresponding movement of 11,007,000 bushels in 1904 and 4,457,000 bushels in 1903. The movement for the fifth month in 1905 was the lowest for any one month of the current year, being only about one-half of what it was in April and approximately 10 million bushels below what it was in March. The opening of the Great Lakes during the early part of May exerting a powerful influence in causing this early movement. For a five-month period east-bound rail movements of all cereals from Chicago and Chicago points aggregated 51,051,000 bushels, as against 48,803,000 bushels in 1904 and 45,145,000 bushels in 1903.

At Chicago the receipts of grain during the month of May reached a total of 8,649,653 bushels, this being nearly a million bushels lighter than a corresponding movement in 1904 and approximately 4½ million bushels below that for 1903. The outbound movement, however, which amounted to 11,569,762 bushels during the fifth month of the current year, although about 3 million bushels below a similar movement in 1903, was nearly 6 million bushels in excess of that for 1904, the opening of the Great Lakes and the consequent reduced rate of the Atlantic seaboard having caused a fre movement of the grain stored in elevators. The inbound movement of all cereals at Chicago during the current year to and including May 27 reached a total of 84,414,072 bushels, an amount over 12 million bushels greater than the 1904 movement and about 4 million bushels heavier than that for 1903. Wheat receipts at this city during the current year totaled 6,887,478 bushels, corn receipts 42,074,926 bushels, oat receipts 24,094,407 bushels, rye receipts 537,510 bushels, and barley receipts 9,119,751 bushels. The corn receipts, as compared with those of the first five months of 1904, show a gain of over 14 million bushels, and to this largely due the heavy increase in the total arrivals of all grains at Chicago. Grain shipments from this market for the first 21 weeks of 1905 totaled 60,522,538 bushels, as against 43,716,072 bushels in 1904 and 62,916,594 bushels in 1903.

During the month of May the number of live animals received at Chicago, Kansas City, Omaha, St. Louis and St. Joseph amounted to 2,935,910 head, an amount approximately 400,000 head larger than corresponding movements in either of the two preceding years. Of the current month's receipts at these markets, 584,898 head were cattle, 69,380 head calves, 1,472,214 head hogs, 780,000 head sheep, and 29,428 head horses and mules. Gains were made in each one of the classes specified by comparison with like movements in 1903 and 1904. The number of cars required to handle the inbound movement of live stock at these five markets during the year totaled 52,338, as against 46,974 cars in 1904 and 48,251 cars in 1903. For a five-month period receipts of live stock aggregated 14,365,565 head in 1905, as against 13,950,227 head in 1904 and 12,578,270 head in 1903. The cattle arriving during this period numbered 2,841,695 head calves, 216,493 head; hogs, 7,410,102 head; sheep, 3,714,881 head, and horses and mules, 182,326 head.

At Chicago live-stock receipts during May totaled 1,343,684 head, an amount appreciably in excess of that representing similar movements in either of the two preceding years. The shipments for the month, which totaled 370,648 head, were also heavier than like movements in 1904 or 1903. Local consumption during May at this city amounted to 972,935 head and was approximately 100,000 head greater than that of similar month in either of the two preceding years. During the first five months of the current year 1,234,148 head of cattle, 182,055 head of calves, 3,546,993 head of hogs, 1,096,849 head of sheep, and 69,583 head of horses were received at Chicago, making a grand total of 6,829,988 head in contrast with similar movement in 1904 of 6,707,532 head and in 1903 of 6,059,831 head.

Packing house products were shipped from Chicago during the first four weeks of May to the amount of 181,822,030 pounds in 1905, as against 200,645,682 pounds in 1904, and 149,406,057 pounds in 1903. For the year to May 27, similar shipments aggregated 965,161,182 pounds, and were composed of 12,377,900 pounds of beef, 58,180,550 pounds of canned meats, 264,141,934 pounds of cured meats, 418,761,119 pounds of dressed beef, 12,655,682 pounds of dressed hogs, 62,657,561 pounds of hides, 126,285,068 pounds of lard, and 10,501,200 pounds of pork. The total amount of similar commodities shipped during corresponding months of 1904 amounted to 1,062,606,204 pounds, and in 1903 to 881,329,000 pounds.

Traffic movements on the Great Lakes were resumed in heavy volume during the month of May, receipts for the month amounting to 8,125,360 tons, as against 1,016,733 tons for a corresponding month in 1904, and 7,148,819 tons in 1903. Shipments, which totaled 8,360,697 tons during the fifth month of the current year, were composed of the following items: 97,676 net tons of flour, 15,428,270 bushels of grain and flaxseed, 1,580,847 net tons of coal, 4,634,522 tons of ore and minerals, 263,615 feet of logs and lumber, and 573,601 net tons of unclassified freight. The total outbound movement during a similar month in 1904 aggregated 1,224,488 tons, and in 1903, 7,178,105 tons. During the first five months of the current year shipments from various points on the Great Lakes totaled 12,175,018 tons, while a similar movement in 1904 amounted to 2,330,851 tons, and in 1903 to 11,338,790 tons. The great increase for the present year, as compared with that for 1904 was not only caused by an earlier opening of navigation, but also by the restricting influences of the labor difficulties occurring in the spring and early summer of 1904.

Traffic on the canals at Sault Ste. Marie, Mich., and Ontario, Canada, for the month of May totaled 5,775,787 net tons, as compared with 449,888 net tons for a corresponding month in 1904, and 5,188,017 net tons in 1903. Of the current month's movement, 4,686,827 tons passed through the United States canal and 1,088,980 tons through the Canadian canal, the total tonnage of those two canals being divided into an eastbound movement of 4,936,851 tons and a westbound movement of 839,936 tons. The principal items composing the eastbound movement were 4,806,670 bushels of grain other than wheat, 4,382,736 tons of iron ore, and 5,582,061 bushels of wheat, while the most prominent items in the westbound movement were 624,227 net tons of soft coal, 98,188 net tons of hard coal, 94,877 net tons of general merchandise, and 59,812 barrels of salt.

RUSSIAN REVOLUTIONISTS:

"Russia," said Danilevsky, "is the only country that never has had and never will have any political revolution." As a record of the past, his declaration was true. As a prophecy, the doings of this present year cause it to be regarded with some doubt.

There, in fact, three well defined revolutionary movements now in progress in Russia. One is led by the Emperor himself. He has declared in the most explicit and determined manner that Russia shall have a constitutional parliament, elected by the people. We must expect him to fulfill that pledge. If he does so, he will effect a revolution. The second movement is that of the Zemstvos and such statesmen as Mr. Witte, who are telling the Emperor that unless the autocracy grants the needed reforms the democracy will rise and effect them by force. The third is the violent movement now ominously visible at Lodz and elsewhere in Poland and other parts of the empire.

It is said that a general revolution is impossible in Russia, because of the lack of homogeneity. True, Russia is not homogeneous. It has no national spirit. The village or commune is the unit to which the individual gives allegiance. The empire is a congeries of realms, as the title "Czar of All the Russias" indicates. There are Great Russia, Little Russia, White Russia, the Ukraine, Poland, Finland, the Caucasus, etc., and the people of each differ from those of the others, and are sometimes antagonistic to them. There is, then, little prospect of uniform action by them all.

Nevertheless, that same circumstance may be a source of fatal weakness. If all the members of the empire will not rise in revolt together, perhaps they will not stand together in suppressing a revolt. In all European Russia there are about 105,000,000 persons. The largest ethnic division of the empire, Great Russia, has just one-third of them. Poland has about one-tenth. All the real Russians united are scarcely three-fourths of the whole. A determined uprising in two or three divisions of the empire might, therefore, be most formidable, because of the lack of unity and coherence among the others.

Under such circumstances, the possibility of revolution in Russia is scarcely to be dismissed today as confidently as it was by Danilevsky.

JULY THE 4th, 1905.

One hundred and twenty-nine years ago tomorrow the Continental Congress in Philadelphia declared the thirteen colonies of Great Britain in America free and independent from the mother country. It was a great undertaking for the little seaboard settlements of America to cast off the yoke of allegiance to the mother country. It was daring men who decided the momentous step and each year as the anniversary of the day comes round it is celebrated the country over in fitting manner. Tomorrow Janesville will celebrate the day with a stupendous celebration, if one may judge from the show bills and press notices. In the form and manner of the Janesville celebration a new and unique feature of the day is enacted.

The old games of climbing the greased pole, chasing the greased pig and running foot races has been done away with. In the morning comes the industrial and military pageant with speaking by Rev. Tippett in the court house park. In the afternoon the burlesque circus and street entertainments and in the evening band concerts and an electrical display takes place. The day will be fittingly celebrated in Janesville that is an assured fact.

PRESS COMMENT.

Turtle Trumpet-Call: Doors will be closed here tomorrow. Ye editor will be with the boys at Janesville.

Appleton Crescent: The first white child born at Green Bay died again the other day.

Rockford Register-Gazette: The Wisconsin boat crew finished last at Poughkeepsie. A badger never was much good in water.

Bradford Bugle: East Indian Durbars at Janesville? Whoa, Ananias! Wheat boy!

Oshkosh Northwestern: Isn't it about time for the Wisconsin varsity crew to look for a new coach?

Exchange: No one has yet thought to suggest that Miss Rehan's operation for appendicitis was in any way due to a scheme concocted by her press agent.

Madison Democrat: "Young men for war, middle-aged men for counsel, real old men for breach of promise" is the truly modern form of an ancient bit of philosophy.

Madison Journal: Gov. La Follette is telling the Chautauqua loungers that he may not go to the senate anyway. "Bob" always did like to keep the groundlings guessing.

Marion Advertiser: Morocco is making an awful fuss among the nations of Europe, and yet from its size as well as its name, one would think it was only a "kid" in the family of nations.

Menasha Record: Would not college athletics be better if the energy devoted to making a few very high marks was expended in developing the physique of all the students.

Racine Journal: Despite the assertion of a Washington paper that in government clerkships lie no promotion, the procession after such never diminishes. Government pork never loses its savor.

La Crosse Leader-Press: When the Wisconsin crew goes to Poughkeepsie its admirers read the race summary the way they do the baseball standing at Green Bay—from the bottom upwards.

Chicago Record-Herald: A New York preaches has resigned his pulpit to enter the life insurance business. Well, it appears that there is plenty of room for good men in the line that he has just taken up.

Marinette Eagle-Star: Every time that a get-rich-quick firm is rounded up by the authorities it is shown that there are thousands and thousands of suckers who were willing to get rich by questionable means.

Sheboygan Journal: A bolt of lightning struck a cow near Janesville and the animal fell upon and nearly killed a farmer. When having your cows struck by lightning it is better to have it done in an open field, and at a safe distance.

Superior Telegram: The Janesville Gazette says that the Chicago Chronicle is the strongest republican paper in Chicago. It ought to be—it has been republican only a few months, and it surely ought to keep its strength that long.

La Crosse Chronicle: Edward K. Bok, editor of the carefully edited Ladies' Home Journal, when asked how he had made that publication so successful replied, "I have worked like the devil." If Ruth Ashmore were alive this would not have happened...

Exchange: It is stated that it costs the New York Central railway and the life and accident insurance companies $771,000 to have a switch misplaced when flyers are running. As usual, the railway finds it cheaper to kill than to maim. It will pay $95,000 for killing fourteen passengers and $200,000 for mauling others.

Green Bay Gazette: Governor La Follette announces from Des Moines that he may never accept the senatorship and that he will not decide until next December, or until just before the convening of congress. In the meantime the governor will be touring the country giving lectures and he probably expects to feel the pulse of the people and draw his own conclusions as to the extent and strength of the expected popular uprising to make him president of the United States in 1908.

La Crosse Chronicle: The country owes to this calm, quiet, judicial-minded, yet alert and courageous secretary. He brought the reputation and influence of American diplomacy to a standard never reached before, and not his own nation only but the whole civilized world learned to trust his integrity, his respect for his judgment, to look to him for sound leadership in the cause of justice and humanity. Never was there greater need of such a man than now, when this country seems destined to mingle more and more actively in worldwide affairs. Always frail of body, though strong of mind, John Hay really wore himself out in the public service.

Chilton Times: The legislature just adjourned placed one good law on the statute books. It absolutely prohibits divorced people from marrying within a year after the decree has been granted. This promises granting of divorces and licensing separated ones to rush headlong into another alliance, with perhaps the same result. Is a growing evil that should not be tolerated. While the law just passed does not prohibit re-marrying after divorce it will have a tendency to check the outrageous custom or at least compel the divorcee to take sufficient time to look the situation squarely in the face before making another contract.

Farley on Divorce: Oshkosh Northwestern: In the opinion of Archbishop Farley of New York, divorce is the most terrible social menace of the present time and he regards President Roosevelt, for his combat with this evil, as the greatest president since the immortal Washington. At the convention of the Knights of Columbus recently held at Los Angeles, Archbishop Farley, who is the official head of this order, made a masterly address in which he spoke of the loyalty of the Catholics to the government and the passing of prejudice as regards public matters. And his praise for the present chief of the executive of this nation was unstinted for the stand which the latter has taken in opposition to the evils of divorce. As a matter of fact nothing more clearly illustrates the cordial feeling of the Catholic clergy toward President Roosevelt, a protestant, than this speech of Archbishop Farley, whose words of commendation are undoubtedly endorsed in Catholic circles everywhere

WILL BE BIGGEST DAY IN HISTORY

TOMORROW IS FOURTH OF JULY
IN JANESEVILLE.

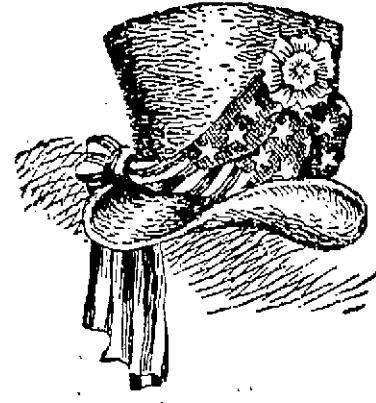

VISITORS FLOCKING HERE

Vanguard Commenced to Arrive This Morning—Outline of the Great Program.

Visitors are flocking into the city today for tomorrow's big Fourth of July celebration which has been heralded all over the Northwest. Every train is bringing them in. From all indications it is to be the biggest day in the history of Janesville. Tonight and tomorrow morning it is expected that every citizen will delegate himself a committee of one to decorate his home and place of business with bunting and flags.

Committeemen Are Busy

All of the committeemen who have the various portions of the celebration in charge were at work bright and early this morning. Col. Nonesuch stopped every young man and old who had not yet signified his intention of taking part in the circus and urgently requested him to do something for his city. The advertising value of this big festival, if rightly carried out, is worth more than tons of picture books and prospectuses. This alone answers the question of utility if anyone is dense enough to ask it and establishes the motive of patriotism and town pride. It is the duty of every citizen, who is not infirm, to do his utmost.

Morning Industrial Parade

The industrial parade will start at ten o'clock at the western end of Milwaukee street. The line of march will not be settled upon definitely until this evening. The parade will form in the following order:

Speaking in the Park

At the conclusion of this parade there will be music and speaking in the Courthouse park, a platform for these exercises having been erected in the western portion of the grounds. Rev. J. H. Tippett will deliver the oration of the day; Rev. Goebel will offer prayer, and Mrs. Jung B. Day will read the Declaration of Independence. The mayor and city council will attend these ceremonies in a body.

Grand Circus Parade

Nonesuch Bros. pageant will move from the fair grounds at two o'clock sharp. All participants should be on hand at one or shortly thereafter. The line of march will be as follows: West on Milwaukee street to Academy street; on Academy to West Bluff; east on West Bluff street to High street; south on High to Milwaukee; east on Milwaukee to Main; south on Main and counter-march.

Vaudeville Shows

Immediately after the circus performance the vaudeville entertainments and band concerts on the three platforms erected—one on South River street, one on the Corn Exchange square, and one on North Main—will commence.

Grand Electric Display

The city will be illuminated with a grand electrical display and streams of colored fire in the evening. The Imperial band will play in the Court house park and the other bands at convenient places to be determined upon later. There will be the customary fireworks and the day will end about 12 o'clock in a blaze of glory.

Foreword to the Boys

Boys who are armed with fire crackers and dynamite canes must refrain from using them during the progress of the two parades when by so doing, horses will be frightened and lives endangered. The shooting of pigeons within the city limits will be followed by prosecution of the guilty parties, according to the edict issued by Marshal Constock this morning.

No Paper Tomorrow

In accordance with custom immorial there will be no issue of the Janesville Daily Gazette tomorrow.

WILL CELEBRATE THE FOURTH AS HOLIDAY

No Issue of the Gazette Will Be Printed Tomorrow Afternoon.

Owing to the fact that tomorrow is the Fourth of July and the Nonesuch Bros.' circus will exhibit here, there will be no issue of the Gazette. The Wednesday issue will be replete with news of both days and the great celebration held here tomorrow.

NO TAGS FOR AUTOS UNTIL JULY 10TH

Janesville Owners Receive Notice That Plates Have Not Yet Come From Manufacturer.

Owners of autos in this city received in their mail either yesterday or today notice from the Secretary of State at Madison that the numerical plates for automobiles required by the new law will not be forwarded until about July 10. A license, granting the bearer the privileges of driving his machine without the tag until it arrives, was sent to each applicant and it was stated that the plates had not yet been received from the manufacturer, but would be sent in about ten days.

May Be Too Large

It has been reported from Madison that the tags were eleven by six inches high and followed by a "W." Members of the Milwaukee automobile club are much wrought up over this and if the rumor proves to be true it may be that the Cream City chauffeurs will refuse to attach the plates.

A number of local drivers, when asked concerning this report, said that they hardly expected any such enormous tags, as they would be unnecessarily large for the accommodations of the numerals prescribed and there seemed to be no thought of rebelling against the new order of things.

What of Motor-Cycles?

Whether or not the new law is intended to apply equally to motor-cycles is not known at the present time. Secretary Drought of the Milwaukee auto club wrote the secretary of state some time ago that he did not believe that the motor-cycles could conveniently carry a number plate with three-inch numerals upon it. He asked for an opinion of the attorney general in regard to the application of the law to the motor-cycles. This has not been forthcoming as yet and the owners of the cycles will not take any steps toward registering their machines until the opinion has been given.

AND NOW IT'S CHICO CIGARS

Interesting Talk by Smith Drug Co. on What Makes a Cigar Popular.

The remarkable success of Wadsworth Bros.' Chico cigar in getting into the mouths of smokers in Janesville is astonishing.

Less than a year ago the Chico was unknown here. Today it is the most popular cigar in Smith Drug Co.'s large stock.

"Advertising alone will not make a cigar popular," said Mr. Smith. "A cigar must be good to meet with a sale in this city. I do not know of a town where the smokers are as discriminating as they are in Janesville, and the fact that they have made Wadsworth Bros.' Chico their favorite, speaks volumes for its quality."

While it sells for 5c, it is better than the average ten cent, so that it reaches all classes of smokers. It is an all long Havana filler cigar, and a good one, that I am glad to recommend to my customers."

KEEPING HIS WORD GIVEN LAST YEAR

Traveling Man Who Swore To Back Here This Fourth Is On His Way From Omaha.

O. W. Swift, a traveling man, happened quite by chance to be "left over" in this city last Fourth of July. He had no intention of spending the day here but after he had seen the Nonesuch Bros.' circus parade he said to Dave Young: "If I'm within 500 miles of Janesville next year, I'll be back here sure." Mr. Young thought no more of the matter until this morning when, upon opening a letter postmarked "Omaha, Nebraska," and written on the stationery of the Hotel Paxton he read under the date of July 1: "My wife and I expect to run into your city July 4th in the forenoon from here. Change at Davis Junction. Kindly reserve a good room for same. I am "Very truly yours,

INDIAN LAND DECISION STATUS OF WARDS

Woman of Mixed Blood Gains Important Suit in Which Standing Is Given, Half-Breeds.

SIOUX FALLS, S. D., July 3.—Judge Carland of the United States court in this city has just handed down a decision which is of far-reaching importance as defining the rights of full-blood and mixed blood Indians.

The decision was rendered in the case of Mrs. Jane E. Waldron versus The United States, Black Tomahawk and Ira A. Hatch, as United States Indian agent at the Cheyenne River agency. A valuable tract of land adjoining the Fort Pierre town site was directly involved in the case, which has been pending through all the various land departments of the United States since February 10, 1890.

Mrs. Waldron, who is a highly educated mixed-blood Indian woman, is a member of what is known as the Two Kettle band of Indians, living on the Cheyenne River reservation, and established her residence on the land in controversy in July, 1889. Since that time she has resided on the land with her family.

She was residing upon the tract at the time 9,000,000 acres of the Great Sioux reservation were opened to settlement on February 10, 1890. Subsequently Black Tomahawk, who is a full-blood Sioux Indian, claimed the tract as his allotment. It was charged that he was induced to claim the land by some townsite "boomers," who were desirous of securing the land through him, so it could be divided into town lots and placed upon the market. Judge Carland, in this connection, decides that Black Tomahawk's settlement on the land was "not in good faith, but in the interest of others."

Black Tomahawk, in due time applied for a patent (title) to the land, and after the case had been fought through the local and general land offices, and to the secretary of the interior, he was granted a trust patent to the disputed tract. This patent was approved by the secretary of the interior on December 10, 1898. The patent was issued to him on the ground that Mrs. Waldron was not an Indian in the full meaning of the term.

Subsequently United States Indian Agent Hatch was called upon to remove Mrs. Waldron and her family from the land. She then instituted the suit, which has just been decided by Judge Carland, and which has resulted in an overwhelming victory for her.

AGED MAN SLAYS INVALID WIFE.

Tired of Supporting Sick Woman, Husband Murders Her.

CLEVELAND, O., July 3.—That he had become tired of supporting his old wife, who had become an invalid, was the excuse for killing her which August Otto, a 68-year-old German, gave the police when he confessed committing the crime. Otto walked into an undertaker's shop, requested that the proper attention be given the body of his wife, who, he said, had fallen down stairs and killed herself. The woman's head was almost hacked to pieces and bloodstains led to a hatchet found in the barn. Otto was arrested, but denied his guilt. Later he admitted committing the crime and stated that he had done the deed with a malice.

The man speaks no English and is supposed to be mentally deranged. The couple had been married almost forty years and have several grown-up children. Mrs. Otto had been in poor health for some time.

Minook, Ill., July 3.—Hugh Maley, long a resident of this place, died here at the age of 103 years.

OFFENSIVE CATARRH
I suffered for a long time with a bad case of Catarrh, and took a great deal of medicine without any benefit.

I had a continual headache, my cheeks had grown purple, my nose was always stopped up, my breath had a sickening and disgusting odor, and I coughed incessantly. I heard of your S. S. S. and wrote you. I commenced to use it, and after taking several bottles I was cured and have never since had the slightest symptom of the disease. Miss MARY L. STORM, Cor. 7th & Felix Sts., St. Joseph, Mo.

Wheeling, W. Va., May 29, 1903.

I had Nasal Catarrh for years, which I used S. S. S. with very gratifying results. I tried local applications for some time, and getting no permanent relief I came to the conclusion that the seat of the trouble was in the blood. Knowing S. S. S. to be a good blood medicine I began its use, and after using it for some little while it did away entirely with the offensive mucus in the nostrils, and I did not have to hawk and spit, especially in the morning, to dislodge the catarrhal matter.

FRED H. PRESSY,
1627 South St.

The filthy secretions and foul mucus that are continually dropping back into the throat, find their way into the stomach and are absorbed into the blood. Catarrh then becomes constitutional, and the only way to get rid of it is through the blood. Write us if you have Catarrh, and our physicians will advise you without charge.

BEAUTIES OF NIKKO

SPOT THE PRIDE OF THE PEOPLE OF JAPAN.

Shrine to Which All True Buddhists Make at Least One Pilgrimage—Burial Place of Ieyasu, Greatest of the Shoguns.

(Special Correspondence.)
If you should happen to be traveling in Japan, and in conversing with a native say to him, "I have seen Japan and it is most beautiful," then perhaps the native would question you and say, "But have you seen Nikko?" And if you should say not, then he would reply, "Sir, among us a tradition runs that he who has not seen Nikko cannot say 'Kekko,' which in our tongue means that unless a man has seen Nikko he has no right to use that phrase 'most beautiful.'

Nikko is the Mecca of the Buddhists in Japan. To die and not have seen it is loss irreparable. And so it is the wish of each and every soul to make that pilgrimage.

Let us make it and approach, not as the Philistine foreigner, lounging in the compartment of a rattling, tooting train, but along the road that for centuries has been worn by the pilgrim's wooden sandal.

Scenes on the Road.

The road runs slowly upward till finally we come from out seemingly endless trees and find ourselves in a flood of sunshine, our rikishas rattling over the uneven road of a village street. Low, open houses string along on either side, and sliding doors, panelled in small rice-paper squares, are pushed back so far as to leave each interior entirely open. As we jog unevenly along we get a glimpse of neatly-walled doors, shining woodwork and hanging, unrolled scrolls, depicting a landscape or perhaps a seated golden Buddha. Women, their black, shiny hair done high upon their heads, go about their work with that little forward trot peculiar to their race. A few bear children on their backs, and some lean over charcoal braziers warming their small, brown hands. To the left of the road is a fur shop, where an old dame sits, smiling and bowing to us, expectant of a purchase, while a man across the way, from a house well stocked with curios, asks us in broken English please to enter. And here along the way we meet a group of children fresh from school, gesticulating and calling shrilly to each other, many of them entirely unconscious of the small brothers and sisters whose heads appear above a bundle at their backs. Each one holds in a chubby fist a pile of cardboard discs, bearing on one side the colored picture of some Japanese emperor or general. Each, in turn, throws his disc at one face upon the ground. If he can turn the other disc over with his throw, it is his. But if not, he must let his own lie while others throw at it. There is a clapping of little sandals just ahead, and behold a group of small ladies under large paper umbrellas and carrying each her school books. They are shy and crowd one another to get past.

At the Temple of Ieyasu.

Across the bridge and we are near the temples placed by the great Shogun Ieyasu and his son, Ieyamitsu, the end and climax of our pilgrimage. They are approached by numberless moss-covered stone steps, as broad as a highway, and banked on both sides by walls of huge stone blocks perfectly fitted and velvety with moss. High above tower those huge cryptomerias, which filter the dim, checkered light through their branches. Once up the steps and through a great arch and we are in the temple's courtyard, a harmony of subdued color, with its gray stone flagging and numberless moss-covered stone lanterns. At the far end stand the temples, and to the left, rising tier on tier, is a huge red pagoda trimmed with gold and hung with golden bells.

The white-pillared gateway through which we must pass is guarded on each side by two red demons, their faces wrinkled in angry hatred, while in their hands they brandish swords and darts. But why is the flowered design of the left inner pillars support-squares, in each square a coiled gold dragon? A paling just within the doors marks the limit to which the pilgrim may approach the great gold Buddha, who, seated on a golden lotus flower, looks out from the gloomy recess of the room. The air is damp and cool and the silence broken only by the mumbled mutterings of pilgrims as they prostrate themselves before the god.

As we cross to the buildings on the right we stand for a moment to behold a novel sight. It is a priestess in a white hood and robe, who, with a tambourine accompaniment, performs a sacred dance. She waves her arms as she shakes the cymbals and slowly pirouettes three times. Then she falls upon her knees and makes low salaam, receiving on the mat before her a shower of copper coins.

The buildings to the right are after the manner of cloisters, low and rambling, with a pillared portico. The paneling in the interior is all in red and gold and black. These rooms are the depositories of Shoguns' trappings. There are silks, brocades and masks in open cases, gold and silver armor on the walls, and gold-lacquered boxes bound with tasseled cord of gold and red.

Bakers' Marks

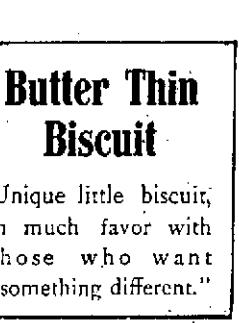

There is a story of an old lady who made up a batch of mince and apple pies. Wishing to be able to distinguish one kind from the other she marked the mince pies T M for "tis mince" and the apple pies T M for "taint mince." The baker's marks on the ordinary run of bakery products are of little more value for purposes of identification than the marks on the old lady's pies.

But HERE is a trade mark that really identifies—that enables you to distinguish the world's best baking—the Biscuit, Crackers, and Wafers made by the NATIONAL BISCUIT COMPANY. This trade mark appearing in red and white on each end of a package guarantees the contents to be of highest quality—pure, clean and fresh. To learn something of what this trade mark means try a package of either of the products mentioned below.

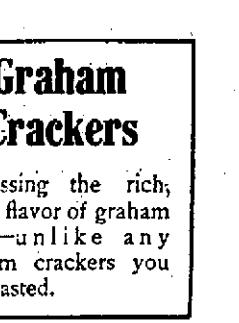

Lemon Snaps

An appetizing nibble with the flavor of the refreshing lemon. A revelation in modern baking.

Butter Thin Biscuit

Unique little biscuit, in much favor with those who want "something different."

Graham Crackers

Possessing the rich, nutty flavor of graham flour—unlike any graham crackers you ever tasted.

IN THE BISHOP'S CARRIAGE

By MIRIAM MICHELSON

(Copyright, 1904, by The Bobbs-Merrill Company.)

"May I ask, Miss Omar?"—I didn't have to see his face; his voice told how mad with rage he was—"how you come to be acquainted with my master that only the contracting parties could possibly know of?"

"Why, they can't have kept it very secret, the old lady and the young rascal who was after her money, for you see we both knew of it; and I wasn't the bride and you certainly weren't the groom, were you?"

An exasperated burst from him.

"Mr. Latimer," he stormed, "may I see you a moment alone?"

Phew! That meant me. But I got up just the same.

"Just keep your seat, Miss Omar." Oh, that silken voice of Latimer's! "Mr. Moriway, I have absolutely no acquaintance with you. I never saw you till to-night. I can't imagine what you may have to say to me, that my secretary—Miss Omar acts in that capacity—may not hear."

"I want to say," burst from Moriway, "that she looks the image of the boy Nat, who stole Mrs. Kingdon's diamonds, that the voice is exactly the same."

"But you have said it, Mr. Moriway—quite successfully intimated it, I assure you."

"She knows of my—of Mrs. Kingdon's marriage, that that boy Nat found out about."

"And you yourself also, as Miss Omar mentioned."

"Myself? Damn it, I'm Moriway, the man she was going to marry. Why shouldn't I?"

"Ah-h!" Latimer's shoulders shook with a gentle laugh. "Well, Mr. Moriway, gentlemen don't swear in my garden. Particularly when ladies are present. Shall we say good evening? Here comes Mullin now. Nothing, sergeant? Too bad the rogue escaped, but you'll catch him. They may get away from you, but they never stay long, do they? Good evening—good evening Mr. Moriway."

They tramped on and out, Moriway's very back showing his rage. He whispered something to the sergeant, who turned to look at me, but shook his head, and the game changed after them.

A long sigh escaped me.

"Warm, isn't it?" Latimer leaned forward. "Now, would you mind ring again, Miss Omar?"

I bent and groped for the bell and rang it twice.

"How quick you are to learn!" he said. "But I really wanted the light this time. Just light up, Burnett." He called to the man, who had come out on the porch.

The electric bulb flashed out again just over my head. Latimer turned and looked at me. When I couldn't bear it any longer, I looked defiantly up at him.

"Pardon," he said, smiling; nice teeth he has and clear eyes. "I was just looking for that boyish resemblance Mr. Moriway spoke of. I hold to my first opinion—you're very feminine, Miss Omar. Will you read to me now, if you please?" He pointed to a big open book on the table beside his couch.

"I think—if you don't mind, Mr. Latimer, I'll begin the reading to-morrow." I got up to go. I was through with that garden now.

"But I do mind!"

Silken voice? Not a bit of it! I turned on him so furiously I thought I didn't care what came of it—when over by the great gate-post I saw a man crouching—Moriway.

I sat down again and pulled the book farther toward the light.

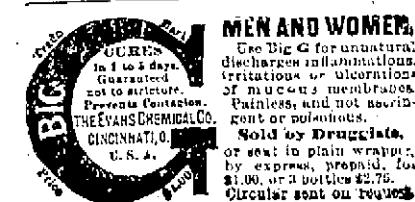

We didn't learn much poetry at the Cruelly, did we? Mag? But I know some now, just the same. When I began to read, I heard only one word—Moriway—Moriway—Moriway. But I must have forgotten him after a time, and the dark garden with the light on only one spot, and the roses smelling, and Latimer lying perfectly still, his face turned toward me, for I was reading—Isten, I bet I can remember that part of it if I say it slow—

Best Medicine He Ever Used for Stomach, Liver and Kidneys.

Read this letter to us from Mr. Alex. J. Walker of Springfield, Ill., which we received on September 12, 1904: "Your remedy, Seven Barks, is the best medicine I have ever used for Stomach, Liver and Kidneys. It certainly will cure Indigestion, Consumption, together with all the listed diseases. As a tonic for run-down men and women, there is no better medicine. I will ever remain a friend to Seven Barks."

When a man knows his stomach is "out of order," he looks about to find a cure. That's what Mr. Walker did, as his letter gives evidence of having tried other remedies, because he refers to Seven Barks as being the best. We sell Seven Barks, because people tell us it's the best tonic for a weak Stomach they've ever used. These people could all come here and get their money back if Seven Barks didn't cure. But how long do you suppose our customers would trade here if we sold them a worthless remedy? Seven Barks is purely vegetable, and pleasant to take. A full-size bottle costs 50 cents. No cure, no pay. Try it. For Sale by Badger Drug Co.

TRY GUESSING DISTANCES.

Interesting Pastime for the Young Folks When Time Hangs Heavily.

Almost everyone knows that the head of an ordinary horse is as long as a barrel, but not many persons would have thought it so without measuring. When you have a rainy day or a dull evening try a distance guessing contest, suggests the Washington Star. Let each player have pencil and paper and write down the list of things to be measured. All have a voice in making up the lists. Some one suggests height of the table. All then write "height of table," and each puts opposite his guess of the height in feet and inches. In the same way other objects are selected and the distances guessed—with of door, dimensions of room, length and height of mantelpiece, distance around a circular stand, distance around Claire's neck or Jack's head, dimensions of books and boxes, height of chairs, pictures and vases.

Finally the papers are signed and exchanged, and some one with tape line or rule measures the various distances. The best guess for each object is marked by a cross, the poorest by a cipher. It will be amusing to see how wild some of the guesses are.

Squirrels Take Care of Themselves. "Squirrels need no protection from dogs," said Attorney Harry Sloan, Janesville. "In fact, in the park at Madison I have seen them tease dogs for the sport of it. They will scamper into the street, take a tantalizing position and let a dog get nearly to them. Then they make for the nearest tree. They ascend the tree just far enough to be beyond the dog. They seem to know by instinct just how far the dog can jump and they stay just beyond his reach. They used to build fences around the park to protect the squirrels from the dogs, but it was soon discovered that they needed no protection and that they enjoy being chased by their canine enemies."

Life a Burden

There are times when life seems a burden—when you are tired, worn-out, have dull pains in the head and a continual feeling of uneasiness. You have no appetite, and your digestion is poor; your sleep broken, and you get no rest.

Little annoyances seem great mountains of trouble, and you are blue, melancholy and given over to gloomy forebodings.

This means low vitality—exhausted brain nerves.

For this condition Dr. Miles' Restorative Nervine is a specific; it is a food for the nerves. It builds up the nervous system, and restores lost energy.

Try it to-day and see if your sleep is not sound and refreshing, and the morrow brighter and more hopeful.

"But what in the devil did you make believe for?" I asked.

He smiled.

"If ever you come to lie on your back day and night, year in and year out, and know that never in your life will it be any different, you may take pleasure in a bit of excitement and learn to pity the under dog, who, in this case, happened to be a boy that leaped over the gate as though his heart was in his mouth. Just as you would admire the nerve of the young lady that came out of the house a few minutes after in your housekeeper's Sunday gown."

Yes, grin, Tom Dorgan. You won't grin long.

I put down the book and got up to go.

ONE THOUSAND DIE IN FLOOD

ENTIRE TOWN IS WASHED AWAY

Water Rises to Second Stories, Dead Bodies Being Carried Through the Streets on Crest of the Raging Torrents.

City of Mexico, July 3.—One thousand lives are reported lost and an enormous damage to property as a result of a cloudburst in Guanajuato, a mining city in the state of that name, where Americans have large investments.

The cloudburst occurred in the southern part of the city, flooding all the principal streets. The Plaza del Cantar is six feet under water, and in some streets the water is twenty feet deep. Several of the mines are partially flooded, and the town of Martiel, the terminus of the railroad just below Guanajuato, is completely wiped out.

The city is built in a great gorge in the mountains and the streets run up the mountain side in picturesque fashion.

Streets Are Raging Torrents.

The storm began on the night of June 30 and after midnight no one of the inhabitants dared go to bed, so tremendous was the fury of the elements. The water rose in the lower or business street, flooding shops and damaging thousands of dollars' worth of merchandise.

The lower streets became raging torrents as the water poured in rivers down the upper streets. Doors were smashed in by the force of the water and windows were no protection against the furious flood.

The town of Marfa, just below Guanajuato, was completely wiped out.

Dead Float in Water.

The water is carrying the dead through every street of Guanajuato.

In Guanajuato the water is up to the second story of the Hotel Union. Great damage has been done to the street car line, and service cannot be resumed inside a month. Telegraphic communication with Guanajuato is cut off. It is reported that the "Laolla" dam was completely destroyed, but this cannot be confirmed. The storm began to abate about 3 o'clock in the afternoon.

The superintendent of the Mexican Central railroad has advised officers here to accept no express or heavy baggage.

INSANE NEGRO SHOOTS SEVEN.

Kills Wife, Her Mother and Another Woman and Wounds Others.

Americus, Ga., July 3.—A wholesale shooting occurred near Leslie, ten miles east of here, resulting in the killing of three negro women and the shooting of four other negroes. A negro of the name of Hicks did all the shooting, killing his wife, his mother-in-law and another woman. Hicks and his wife had been separated some time. He went armed to the home of her parents, but learned that she was eight miles away. Without explanation Hicks raised his gun and killed his mother-in-law. He then compelled the dead woman's husband to secure a team and carry him to where his wife was staying. On his arrival there Hicks shot his wife dead and then shot promiscuously until four negroes had fallen, making a total of seven victims. Little hope is entertained for the recovery of the remaining four victims. Hicks has not been captured.

MINERS HAVE NARROW ESCAPE.

Hoisted to Top of Shaft and Dumped Into the Ore Chute.

Iron Mountain, Mich., July 3.—Hoisted to the surface at the rate of nearly a mile per minute, three men employed at the Florence mine came within a small margin of losing their lives through disobedience of the stringent rule prohibiting the use of the skip in ascending the shaft. The trio had put their drill machines and tools into the skip and climbing in gave the signal to hoist. They rang the wrong number of bells and the engineer supposing the skip contained ore pulled it at top speed to the top of the shafthouse, whence the contents of the skip were dumped into a twenty-four-foot chute. Two of the men managed to grasp a timber and save themselves, while their companion together with the tools, was hurled into an ore car many feet below. He was picked up unconscious and presumably dead, but beyond a few bruises was found to have escaped injury.

ENJOYABLE PICNIC AT FORT ATKINSON

United Commercial Travelers of Janesville and Watertown, Join in Celebration.

In a grove near Fort Atkinson Saturday the members and their wives of the Janesville Council number 108, United Commercial Travelers, and Watertown council number 247, with a few visitors from Edgerton and Milton, held a delightful picnic. The Bower City delegation numbered seventy-five and the Watertown about sixty. The day was enjoyed spent in athletic contests for both men and women, married and single, a baseball game between the two towns and other outdoor sports. The diamond contest resulted in a victory for Janesville by a score of 15 to 9. A tug of war was to be held but the steel cable which was promised by a Watertown manufacturing concern was not sent and it was not deemed advisable to pull with a rope of the usual strength. The Janesville women who were entered in the pie-eating contest were Mesdames M. C. Fish, C. P. Yates, S. C. Chambers, H. L. McNamara, and J. Waddle. On the program of the day it was stipulated that only storage eggs could be used in the egg race and no new potatoes would be allowed in the potato race. The trip was made by special.

Kneip has made application for permission to run the stand at 213 West Milwaukee street that had been conducted by W. P. Mason. NEWS OF A PERSONAL NATURE

WORK OF THE BAYONETS.

What Is Meant by the Order "Throw Yourselves on Their Bayonets."

It is a phrase merely to those of us who do not know war at first hand: "Then the men threw themselves on the bayonets of the enemy." It sounds desperate and dramatic, but this account in Blackwood's Magazine by a naval lieutenant at Port Arthur shows what it really means:

For 30 long minutes a hand-to-hand struggle had continued. Men threw grenades in each other's faces. Half-demented Samurais hung themselves upon the bayonets of the dozen Muscovites that held the traverse in the trench. Who shall say that the day of the bayonet is past? Although there was not a breach that had not its cartridge in the chamber, yet men roused to the limit of their animal fury overlook the mechanical appliances that make war easy. They thirsted to come to grips, and to grips had attached itself.

This sea anemone, which is of a deep and bright salmon pink in color, with tentacles of a lighter tint, would measure distended about six inches in height, with its top and bottom disks each about five inches in diameter, while in spread of tentacles it would measure from six to eight inches. It is big as well as a fine specimen.

There has lately been received at the Aquarium a lot of smaller sea anemones, such as are found in great numbers on the rocks in the waters benthobots, and which may be gathered at low tide. This lot was brought from City Island.

These smaller sea anemones from City Island are shown in the same tank with the big one flushed up from the ocean bottom, making altogether an attractive little spring exhibition of these curious and wonderful animal flowers.

FEWER MEN USE UMBRELLAS

The Once Popular Rain Chute Is Becoming as Obsolete as the Rubber Overshoe.

"I believe the use of umbrellas by men is largely being discontinued," said the dealer, according to the Milwaukee Sentinel. "There was a time when every man had an umbrella, and was absolutely dependent upon it in the event of a storm, but from observations I have been making for my own satisfaction, I am convinced that in a few years, the man with an umbrella will be the exception, and not the rule."

The umbrella will become as obsolete as the rubber overshoe is today. Not many years ago shoes with soles as heavy as those on the finest footware of the present period would have been thought fit only for an outdoor laborer. Men wore dainty shoes then, and used rubbers when it rained. Now they wear the heavy shoes, finding them comfortable in fair weather, necessary in wet.

The cravatine raincoat will as surely put the umbrella on the shelf. It is light and comfortable, stylish in appearance, and can be carried with as little inconvenience as an umbrella or cane. Then there is no trouble about managing it in a wind storm. When a man has struggled through a small-sized hurricane with an umbrella, he is about ready to throw it away and take his chances with the elements."

WYLE'S ISLAND STATUE.

The work was urgent; there was no time to waste, so she called her husband, she found that she must earn a living for herself and children or become dependent upon relatives who could ill afford to provide for her. Her husband had kept a large force of men busy in the boiler cleaning business. His principal patrons were steamboat owners and captains. Mrs. Harris took charge of her absent husband's office, in search of clues to his whereabouts, and in the mail she found many orders to clean steamship boilers.

Summer in the East.

It is estimated that there will be larger travel to the Eastern resorts this year than for several years.

The New York Central Lines will offer a marvelous train service, and anticipate that their facilities will be taxed to their utmost capacity.

Wonderful Paris.

Paris! Paris! No other city knows how to amuse itself. The passing of time elsewhere so pitiless, here brings but a succession of feast days, which follow so rapidly and closely that one has hardly time to count them.—Journal des Debats.

MARINE ANIMAL FLOWERS.

See Anemones Make an Attractive Exhibit in the New York Aquarium.

As fine a sea anemone as the Aquarium has ever had from local waters is now on view, says the New York Sun of recent date. It was fished up lately from the ocean bottom off the Jersey coast by an angler on one of the fishing steamers that go out daily from this city. There was brought up with it a little boulder of five or six pounds' weight, to which the anemone had attached itself.

This sea anemone, which is of a deep and bright salmon pink in color, with tentacles of a lighter tint, would measure distended about six inches in height, with its top and bottom disks each about five inches in diameter, while in spread of tentacles it would measure from six to eight inches. It is big as well as a fine specimen.

The Perfect Prescription.
A patient at a metropolitan hospital goes away best satisfied when he is given something to drink out of a bottle. The drinking, according to an ancient ritual, must not be less often than three times a day, and the ceremony must have some reference to meals. The draught, to be efficient, must be colored. It must have a marked odor, so that he may invite his friends to smell it. It should be loathsome to the taste, so that the taking of it may call for some heroism. Above all, it needs to possess an evil-looking sediment, which will require a formal shaking of the vial.—Hospital.

Frequent Occurrence.
"I've been reading of a man who reached the age of 50 without being able to read. He met a woman and for her sake made a scholar of himself in three years."

"And I know a man who at middle life was a profound scholar. At the age of 50 he met a woman, and for her sake made a fool of himself in three days."—Cleveland Leader.

Eternal Feminine.
Mr. Cumso—I have often wondered whether, in the event of women being granted suffrage, they would wear the party joke as weekly as we men?

Mrs. Speechem—You may be sure they wouldn't if yokes were not in style.—Puck.

NOT SO MANY MILLIONAIRES

The Number Generally Supposed to Exist in the World Is Greatly Overestimated.

There is a great misapprehension as to the number of millionaires in New York and in the world. Chauncey M. Depew said recently that there were 100,000 millionaires in the United States. According to a great commercial agency, which is probably nearer right, there are only 7,000. The Financial Red Book, a most carefully compiled publication, gives the names of practically all the persons in the United States who are supposed to be worth more than $300,000. And there are only 15,000 names on the list. No claim is made that the name of every person worth that amount or more is given, but the proportion of those left out is extremely small, for a most exhaustive investigation has been made. In the last few years there has been a marked tendency among men of wealth to conceal the amount of their worldly possessions. The first incentive in this respect is the vulgar prominence given to the man that has lots of money. There are other reasons men have for suppressing knowledge of the amount of their wealth. Some wish to avoid heavy taxation and give false returns. Another man may have made his money in a business not uncommonly supposed to be especially lucrative, and he doesn't care to have his influence blazoned forth to arouse competition.
